A press release from the Arizona Dept. Of Economic Security, Research Administration

March 29, 2007

Construction, Hospitality Sectors Rebound in February as Jobless Rate Falls Below 4 Percent

Arizona's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 3.9 percent in February, compared to 4.2 percent in January. At the national level, the adjusted unemployment rate was essentially unchanged at 4.5 percent.

Arizona's economy added 37,900 nonfarm jobs in February, reaching a total of 2,717,400. This increase followed mostly seasonal gains of 13,200 in December and a (revised) loss of 45,700 in January. Ninety-two percent (or 34,900) of these jobs were in the service-providing industries. The goods-producing cluster (+3,000) accounted for 8 percent of the total monthly increase.

Nine of 11 supersectors gained jobs, while two remained unchanged. Four major industries (three of which had losses in January) reached new record employment levels. These were educational and health services, leisure and hospitality, government, and other services. Other services (which experienced no January losses) continued to expand.

Construction added the largest number of jobs in the goods-producing industries (+1,900) in February, regaining nearly half of construction jobs lost in January. Specialty trades rebounded from January losses by gaining 1,600 jobs. In contrast, national construction declined sharply, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

Professional and business services added 6,800 jobs. This industry has grown by 27,600 jobs since February 2006. Notably, professional and business services employment was revised downward by 1,800 in January.

Approximately 65 percent of the gains occurred in administrative and support and waste (+4,400). Employment services accounted for the bulk of February's increase by adding 2,900 jobs.

The leisure and hospitality industry added 6,100 jobs, recovering from seasonal losses experienced in January. February's increase boosted employment to a new record of 276,600. This industry has added 12,400 jobs over levels one year ago. Arts, entertainment and recreation had an employment gain of 1,300, translating into a 9.3 percent over-the-year growth rate.

Financial activities employment grew by 1,200. Finance and insurance added 900 of these jobs. Credit intermediation and related activities posted a gain of 700 jobs while securities and commodity contracts, and insurance carrier and related activities each added 100.

Educational and health services employment increased by 2,000. Over-the month percentage growth was slightly below its 10-year average, but nonetheless this industry attained a record level of jobs — 297,600. In line with the 10-year average, educational services added 900 jobs while health care and social assistance gained 1,100. Educational and health services has added 11,300 jobs from February 2006.

Information gained 300 jobs in February after a loss of 600 in January. Within this industry, the telecommunications sector was flat. Information has consolidated employment by 5.3 percent since February 2006.

Other services added 1,700 jobs in February as levels pushed to a new record of 105,000.

Government employment rose by a seasonally expected 16,800 jobs with the return of staff and students to education. The bulk of this increase stems from gains in education, with local education increasing by 12,000 jobs and state education adding 4,300. State and local education accounted for 97 percent of the monthly increase in government.

Natural resources and mining remained unchanged in February.

Manufacturing experienced a gain of 1,100 jobs and was slightly above its 10-year average gain, yet was unchanged over-the-year. Durable goods manufacturing experienced the largest gains in February. After flat results in January, aerospace products and parts posted an increase of 1,100 jobs. Growth in manufacturing jobs in February, which was mostly due to the resolution of a labor dispute in this sector that began in November 2006, may not be sustained. Nondurable goods added 100 jobs last month. Nationally, according to BLS, manufacturing lost jobs.

Equal Opportunity Employer/Program

Under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the department must make a reasonable accommodation to allow a person with a disability to take part in a program, service, or activity. For example, this means that if necessary, the department must provide sign language interpreters for people who are deaf, a wheelchair-accessible location, or enlarged print materials. It also means that the department will take any other reasonable action that allows you to take part in and understand a program or activity, including making reasonable changes to an activity. If you believe that you will not be able to understand or take part in a program or activity because of your disability, please let us know of your disability needs in advance if at all possible. This document is available in alternative formats by contacting the Arizona Department of Economic Security, Research Administration, at (602) 542-3871.

Trade, transportation and utilities was flat overall in February, but did have varied activity among component industries. Retail trade (-1,200) continued with post-holiday layoffs. Although the retail sector reduced employment by a total of 12,200 in January and February, the reduction was below seasonal expectations. All other sectors showed increases. The building materials and garden equipment dealer industry had a gain of 400 jobs. Truck transportation added 100 jobs. Air transportation was flat in February, but over-the-year employment has increased by 12.2 percent.

In conclusion, Arizona's economy continued to expand in February, adding nearly 38,000 jobs. Typical seasonal patterns occurred during the post-holiday period in industries such as government education and trade. All major industries were well within range of their 10-year average in terms of growth for the month. Nine of 11 major industries had gains in February; two industries remained unchanged and four attained record levels. Compared to the sharp decline for the nation, construction employment was up in the state. February figures show Arizona's economy moving forward with a fairly healthy 12-month growth rate of 4.3 percent.
